The River Teify rises in north-east Cardiganshire, and, after a winding course of about 53 miles, runs into the southern extremity of Cardigan Bay by means of a broad estuary on which the town of Cardigan is situated. For the greater part of its course the Teify flows through scenery of very great beauty, richly wooded hills sloping down to the very water's edge.

How are you, becoming all this time? I have just returned from my holiday.
 I have been to Aremmala.
 I had very nice weather part of the time. Today it is raining, nearly as fast as it can. Hope you have it fine for you half holiday. Love
 Edie
